

•▲ Bartender in those days was a combination of artist and scientist, who was looked upon with some awe by mere statesmen, bankers and leaders in others professions. To know just how many dashes of lemon juice to a Manhattan Cooler was no small accomplishment. Great friendships have sprung up there from between white jackets and their steady patrons. A Bartender who knew the exact proportions of a Supreme Court Judge's tippie might expect any favour from His Honor, short of causing the latter's impeachment.

Henry Collins Brown, In the Golden Nineties,
1928

•▲ stimulating liquor composed of spirits of any kind, sugar, waters, and bitters. It is vulgarly called "bitter sling", and is supposed to be an excellent electioneering potion.'

CHAPTER ONE (1800 – 1890)

“It set the mind free of responsibility, obliterating both memory and tomorrow, it gave the heart an adventitious feeling of superiority and momentarily vanquished all the celebrated, the eternal fears. Yes that was the danger of skilfully prepared intoxicating drinks.”

Joseph Hergesheiner, San Cristobal de le Habana, 1920

“What difference is there between a glass of absinth and a sunset? After the first glass you see things as you wish they were. After the second, you see things as they are not, Finally ; you see things as they really are, and that is the most horrible thing in the world”
Oscar Wild
